Rest

We pass from the summer holidays to the holidays of All Saints Day, from the Christmas holidays to the Easter holidays and, year after year, we learn to live with this alternation between work and rest.

Rest is of capital importance. In the Bible, God rests on the seventh day of the creation and invites all humanity to follow this example. Jesus himself will say to his disciples : “ go aside and rest a little ” (Mathew 6, 31). To take time off for holidays, in effect, is not to indulge in idleness ; it is above all to be aware that our life is not defined uniquely by our professional or school activities. Holidays mark a break in the rhythm of our life, and even in our relationships with others. To be “on holiday” is to discover another relationship with others, with more freedom and more peace. It is also to discover another relationship with ourselves and with God. The seventh day of creation does not represent a “ stop ” in divine activity : God contemplates and rejoices in his work, He tastes the fruit of his work in the new relationship with the ever babbling humanity.

The rest to which we are invited is always a time where God calls upon us to rediscover this call to contemplate Him in exchange. Holidays are the best time for a deep examination of this face to face encounter with our creator and welcome the profound peace which He desires for all of us.

So have an enjoyable holiday and a good rest !

Father Alexandre Denis.
